Q1. Consider the Cats & Dogs example. Start initially with a training sample of 500, a validation sample of 250, and a test sample of 250 (like in the text). Use any technique to reduce overfitting and improve performance in developing a network that you train from scratch. What performance did you achieve?

Copying images to training, validation, and test directories

In [5]: import os, shutil, pathlib original_di = pathlib.Path("train") newbase_di = pathlib.Path("cats_vs_dogs_small") def make_subset(subset_name, start_index, end_index):

    for category in ("cat", "dog"):
        dir = newbase_di / subset_name / category os.makedirs(dir)
        fnames = [f"{category}.{i}.jpg" for i in range(start_index, end_index)]
        for fname in fnames:
            shutil.copyfile(src=original_di / fname, dst=dir / fname)

make_subset("train", start_index=667, end_index=1167) make_subset("validation", start_index=1168, end_index=1418) make_subset("test", start_index=1419, end_index=1669)

Reading pictures with "image_dataset_from_directory"

In [6]: from tensorflow.keras.utils import image_dataset_from_directory training_df = image_dataset_from_directory( newbase_di / "train",

    image_size=(180, 180),

valid_df = image_dataset_from_directory(
    newbase_di / "validation",

    image_size=(180, 180),
    batch_size=32)
testing_df= image_dataset_from_directory(
    newbase_di / "test",
    image_size=(180, 180),
    batch_size=32)

Creating a tiny network for categorizing dogs versus cats preparing model for training

In [13]: model.compile(loss="binary_crossentropy", optimizer="adam",
                       metrics=["accuracy"])

We first build the model, then use the training dataset to train it. At the conclusion of each epoch, we validate the model's performance using the validation dataset. In order to shorten the execution time of each epoch, I'm using GPU.

From the above result we can conclude that the test accuracy with no data augmentation is about 69.7% when the Training accuracy is about 92%.

Q2. Increase your training sample size. You may pick any amount. Keep the validation and test samples the same as above. Optimize your network (again training from scratch). What performance did you achieve?

Using data augmentation

Q3. Now change your training sample so that you achieve better performance than those from Steps 1 and 2. This sample size may be larger, or smaller than those in the previous steps. The objective is to find the ideal training sample size to get best prediction results.

Step 3 involved the usage of test sets including 500 samples and 2000 training samples with validation. Compared to training samples of 1000 and 2000 photos, I have found that test accuracy is higher with 1500 images.

When there are 1000 training samples, training accuracy improves.

Q4. Repeat Steps 1-3, but now using a pretrained network. The sample sizes you use in Steps 2 and 3 for the pretrained network may be the same or different from those using the network where you trained from scratch. Again, use any and all optimization techniques to get best performance.
